Executive Summary

Insights

...while Nordea can win big with the right frameworks

Global scale helps win over family offices:

- Wide range of instruments
- Strong governance; consistent quality
- Data privacy and insights

Regional expertise helps win over global players:

- Know-how in domestic markets, taxation
- Local networks of advisors and business leaders
- Impact and ESG investing

Personal approaches are not fully in place yet to best serve UHNWIs:

- Bespoke portfolio building
- Dedicated point-of-contact
- Cross-department collaboration for client outreach

Strong foundation to impress the ultra-wealthy clients but a more tailored structure is needed

Appendix

The four core learning outcomes of the next-gen program

Involving the next-generation of heirs early on

Strategic Objective

A legacy-building initiative that ensures UNHWI heirs confidently take the reins of family wealth

What is Nordea Elevate?

Nordea
ELEVATE

Building the next generation of leaders through...

Educational content, social connection and personal development events and resources curated specifically for the next generation of UHNWI heirs.

The opportunities include:

Case Study: Citi Private Bank Latitude

Equips the next generation of UNHWI with the skills, network and mindset to manage their family wealth primarily in Asia

Elevate Summit

Largest event with global attendance and most coveted speakers speak on important issues

Elevate Connect

Smaller regional events focused on building relationships and community locally

Elevate Grow

Asynchronous educational content and accessible coaching services on the Elevate webpage

Third Party Retreat Planner

Partnership Overview

Moniker Partners is a leading advisory firm, specializing in providing top-tier talent solutions to high-growth and complex businesses globally. The firm partners with companies to identify, assess, and secure leadership across various industries.

A key component of the retreat involves team-building activities that foster communication and strengthen relationships among family members across generations. The retreat concludes with a collaborative action plan, outlining next steps for implementing the succession strategy and ensuring a smooth transition of wealth and leadership.

Program Overview

Welcome and Introduction: The family is introduced to the retreat's objectives—preparing the next generation to take on leadership roles and steward the family legacy. An overview of the agenda is provided to ensure alignment of expectations.

Educational Workshops: Interactive workshops are led by wealth management experts, focusing on areas such as estate planning, family governance, and financial stewardship. These sessions equip the family with the knowledge necessary for effective wealth transfer and leadership succession.

Structured Family Discussions: Family members engage in guided discussions and role-playing exercises, addressing potential challenges in wealth transfer and leadership transition. This promotes understanding of individual roles and responsibilities within the family.

Nordea Elevate Pilot Program

Key Objectives

Test Program Effectiveness

- Assess how well the educational content resonates with participants, whether they find it valuable, and how it contributes to their ability to understand wealth management and governance.

Gather Feedback for Refinement

- Collect actionable feedback from participants and families on curriculum, delivery methods, and program structure.

Ensure Engagement:

- Test how engaged and interested the next generation is in participating and how they interact with the content, coaches, and other participants.

Optimize Logistics:

- Understand the logistics of the program – from scheduling to communication, platform usage, and participant support.

Cohort Selection

Cohort Size: Aim for 5 to 10 families with a total of 20-30 next-gen heirs. This group size allows for personalized attention and creates an environment where participants feel comfortable sharing and learning from each other.

Family Diversity: Select families with varying wealth types and structures, such as Family businesses and Cross-generational families.

Selection Criteria: Focus on families who are actively involved in succession planning and have the intent to transfer wealth across generations. Prioritize families with complex wealth structures where succession planning is essential for the next generation.

The pilot program for next-generation education in inheritance is a critical starting point for Nordea to establish and refine its in-house educational offerings. The goal of this pilot is to test key components of the program, collect feedback, refine content, and ensure that it meets the needs of UHNW families before scaling it.

Why standalone FOs are not suited for modern complex wealth transitions

Weak governance:

- Standalone FOs tend to lack formal decision-making processes and clear guidelines for information sharing. This is an issue in a time when governance, communication, and conflict resolution are gaining increasing importance within families

Data privacy, access controls, and cybersecurity:

- 80% of UHNWIs cite data privacy as crucial in selecting a wealth manager

Limited access to bespoke alternative solutions for portfolio diversification:

- Access to the private market and alternative investments is limited while proper advisory services and education on less common instruments are not as common

Out-of-date technology, data management, insight extraction

- Standalone FOs often lack the expertise to consolidate large data volumes and derive meaningful insights. Real-time data processing, investment execution and aggregation are costly without scale

The standalone family office struggles to keep up with demands of customers with complex ask!

Represents the requirement for a broader team to focus entirely on the creation of a new platform for high wealth individuals

Displays a ramp up in R&D expenses to reflect the development period of the software.

Step down after the initial R&D period is over with a still significant interest in expanding the AI platform.
